Treespay, Nov. 11.—The court met at the usual hour, all the judges being present.

Judge Scarburgh delivered the opinion of the court in the case of James B. Armstrong es. The United States. The claim is for damages to the amount of two hundred thousand deliars for the non-performance by the government of a contract with him for the transportation of government supplies in 1855.

The opinion of the court is that the petitioner is entitled to relief, but the evidence on file is insufficient to enable them to determine the damages which he has sustained.

The case of Richard W. Meade, administrator of Richard W. Meade, deceased, ex. The United States, was regumed. How Reverdy Johnson commenced the closing argument for the petitioner; but, without concluding, the court adjourned until Monday next.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

AN IMPROVED BIBLE.

Last evening about a hundred persons assembled in the basement of the Thirteenth street Baptist church, to listen to addresses upon the subject of having a version of the Holy Scriptures which will not be liable to the obections that are made against that now in use. Rev. Dr. Wykoff, the secretary of the American Bible Union, first ok the stand, and illustrated the necessity for the work which that association has undertaken by the following which that association has undertaken by the following anecdote: A merchant who had been doing an extensive business met with serious reverses, and found himself unable to meet the demands of his creditors. Being reduced to utter despair, and feeling unwilling to face those who had known him in more prosperous times, he shut himself up in his counting-room and contemplated Georgetown next week. While in this frame of mind, a knock was heard at the door, and on opening it a gentleman entered, who told him that he had become aware of his situation, who told him that he had become aware of his situation, and was ready to advance him any amount of money which he might need to astisfy the demands against him, and would also allow him the use of his credit to enable him to prosecute his business without interruption.

This friend, who thus assisted him in the hour of his extremity, was a foreigner who could not speak the English language very well; and his assistance was received with a grateful heart. A short time afterwards, this generous friend was called home by business to his own land, and after some time the merchant received a letter from him, written in his own language. The merchant, as may well be supposed lost no time in procuring an accurate translation of this communication from his kind benefactor, so that he might know his desires and intentions with regard to communication from his kind benefactor, so that he might know his desires and intentions with regard to him. The speaker went on to say that we were all in a similar condition with this merchant. We were ruined, not in pocket or in reputation, but in heart, soul, and mind, for time and for eternity. There was no being in this world that could help us. All our friends combined could not relieve us in our difficulties. We felt an overwhelming load of gilt resting upon us, and were going whelming load of gilt resting upon us, and were going down to utter destruction, when the Lord of Giory appeared, knocked at the door of our hearts, represented himself as a friend who would take all our troubles upon himself, and enriched us far above all that this world can afford. He has given us a letter, explaining His will; but this letter is written in a foreign language; and should we not be anxious to have as accurate a translation. It is at the graph of the statement lation of it as it is possible to obtain? The translation lation of it as it is possible to obtain? The translation

In reading it, we frequently mis-understand the ideas intended to be communicated; and w T Miller May New York & Young, Obleunderstand the ideas intended to be communicated; and our defective translation, said Dr. W., spoils thousands and thousands of verses in the Bible. He proceeded to give examples to illustrate his assertion, and mentioned the case of a young man who lingered for two years and died in despair, in consequence of a wrong translation of a particular verse. He then noticed in detail some of the classes of defects of which he complained. In the first the classes of defects of which he complained. In the first place, great errors often arose from the absence of the proper punctuation marks. The original Greek and Heproper punctuation marks. The original Greek and Hebrow editions were not punctuated. The speaker then quoted several illustrations, and stated the corrections. Thousands of others had been discovered by the members of the union. Secondly, he pointed out numerous additions to the books of the Bible where words had been inserted that never were in the books. He spoke of the inserted that never were in the books. He spoke of the obsolete words, and took as an illustration the word "conversation," which he said in the original meant "beha vior," and not a colloquy between two or more persons. There was another class of words whose meanings had been changed since the present translation was made. in two or three hundred years, the Bible Union had sent Dr. Hackett to Greece, in order that, by observing the meaning of terms in the living language, he could ascer-tain their precise meaning eighteen hundred years ago!

This had been deemed indispensable by learned men.
Rev. Dr. Armitage, the president of the Bible Union also set forth the objects of the society, and expressed the opinion that most of the arguments of skeptics were to the founded upon wrong translations. He quoted several passages where, by changing the translation a little, the objections of the infidel would fall to the ground. The passages where, by changing the translation a little, the objections of the infidel would fail to the ground. The variety of religious opinions was owing to different understandings of the same texts; and by making them so plain that there could be no dispute, greater harmony of plain that there could be no dispute, greater harmony of sentiment could be obtained. For instance, if, instead of the word "baptise," as to the meaning of which there are different opinions, we substitute the word "immerse," are different opinions, we substitute the word "immerse," the whole subject is made plain. The Bible Union was organized by nineteen gentlemen, and now numbers many eminent scholars and clergymen. Dr. A. stated that he was on his way to Richunda, and only spoke here by invitation. He thanked the audience for their attention, about without credit among our exchanges:

"There has been a decision in New Jersey that the owner of a premises cannot be made responsible for the payment of a gas bill of a former tenant who has removed without settling, and that the company cannot refuse gas to a future tenant who is ready to pay for it. Gas can be stopped for the non-payment to the contracting party, but not otherwise. This strikes us as sound equity, and any law compelling one man to pay the debts of another, where no value has been received, or no responsibility assumed, is unconstitutional, and ought not to stand the test of the Supreme Court; and we feel assured it will not, whenever the question is put to the sured it will not, whenever the question is put to the proper tribunal. The same custom, we believe, prevails in this city. It is unsustained by reason and justice, and we should like to see the law place its prohibition on it."

Fire. - Yesterday morning, about eleven o'clock, there was an alarm of fire, caused by the accidental burning of some of the wood work in the ordnance shop at the navy yard. The damage was small, and the fire was extinguished without the necessity of using the engines.
